

April 21, 2008

NEW YORK: Warmer weather continued through the week ending April 20, with high temperatures reaching the 70's. Manure pits were being emptied. Farmers in most counties have been fertilizing, planting, and plowing ground. Producers were beginning to plant small grains in addition to sweet corn. Planting of peas and onions has started in western New York. On Long Island, buds were starting to swell in wine grape vineyards.